FAMEOUS WILD HORSE

BY AN OLD TROTTER.

The Wild Horse creek attracts many visitors. It has a great reputation, although this exists to some considerable extent in the memories of the past. It is hard to realize that within a very limited area of its narrow valley there was within the memory of the living generation, a great mining town with a vast population gathered from many parts of the earth, and that out of a small stretch of gravel-bed of the creek there was produced within two years more gold than the Yukon produced in twice that time with all the talk of its fabulous richness. Gold is yet being produced from its placer-beds; a mining population still exists; there are yet the remains of a town, and some of the first inhabitants and early pioneers still linger among their first associations of this creek.

The Wild Horse creek flows into the Kootenay river on the south side of Fort Steele, and about four miles up was the commencement of the early placer diggings. The main town, which once had a big population, is now a wagon road up this side of the creek for some miles. This road leaves the main trunk road in Kootenay valley about a half mile from Fort Steele and turns sharply up the creek, which it follows across a timbered plain until a ridge of hills running a right angles with the creek is reached when the road diverges to the left for the purpose of obtaining an easier grade to cross the ridge.

When the top of this ridge is reached a most magnificent view is the reward given beneath the ridge just topside runs a small creek—Brewery creek—which empties into the Wild Horse at the mouth of which is dwelling of 'Old Doe', the first pioneer to discover the golden wealth of the Wild Horse creek.

Joining the wagon road over the top of the ridge are the traces of an old disused wagon road, which was the first wagon road constructed in all East Kootenay. This was a wagon road built by W. C. Milby, who had a ranch on the opposite side of the Kootenay near the present North Star landing and also a store up the Wild Horse creek at the big town of Fisherville, which they boasted of a population of several thousands. The wagon road was constructed between the ranch and the store. The first wagon was brought in by pack trains in pieces from Frenchtown, in Montana.

Crossing the bed of Brewery creek, the road rises up the side of another ridge to get on to the high level above the Wild Horse, and, when this is attained, the road branches into two: one descending to the former town now called Chinatown, where about a hundred Chinese now reside, nearly all engaged in placer mining operation; while the other continues up along the side of the creek to some miles, passing the store and residence of Dave Griffith, another old timer possessing great land of minerals of ancient times. Visitors generally terminate their excursion at the Lovisa placer mines, which are the mines that are working highest up the creek on its north side.

Placer mining in all its different stages from the rude cradle, or rocker, to the powerful hydraulic monitor, washing out hundreds of cubic yards every day, is still being prosecuted in this creek. Prospecting in placer is going on extensively, searching for the hidden channels and seeking for the bedrock, in order to discover the patches of gold.

During the many years operations have been carried on at Wild Horse creek many millions of dollars have been taken out by the various companies and individual workers, but across the two tributary creeks, Fisher creek on the south side and Brewery creek on the north side was the richest gravel ground on the creek.

A moot question is much discussed whether the Wild Horse creek did not at one time run around the upper side of this mountain and discharge its waters by way of Shingle creek, instead of now running around its lower side and discharging its waters into the Kootenay, or whether the Shingle creek did not originally flow around the upper side and discharge its waters into the Wild Horse creek by way of Fisher creek. At all events, it is agreed that Shingle creek, which disappears, must at one time have had a connection with Wild Horse creek and been one of the channels through which the gold came. Consequently considerable prospecting work has been done on the opposite side of this mountain in search of hidden channels to discover placer ground. Shafte have been sunk and gravel struck with a considerable amount of gold.

The gold of the creek must have come from somewhere, and the mystery to find out is that "somewhere". It is hoped that those promising ledges, when development work has been done, will disclose some of those sources or hidden wealth that supplied the gravel beds and banks of the streams with such rich deposits of placer gold.

MONEY IN TOMATOES

Cleared $5,000 per Acre—It Should be Tried Here

Every person who knows anything about gardening in the Columbia valley, knows that tomatoes grow luxuriantly here and to a very large size but it is also a fact that it is difficult to ripen early. It appears that in the Okanagan the same conditions prevail and yet over there big money is being made growing tomatoes and there appears to be no good reason why they should not be here. The following clipping from the Vernon Okanagan seems incredible, but if it be true this tomato growing is more profitable than gold mining:

The property of D. Gellately & Sons, on the west shore of Okanagan lake, is one of the best spots of the valley stretching out into the lake is a tongue of land that is wonderfully rich and though hard work is required to clear it and bring it into cultivation, there is probably no part of the valley that gives better returns. Mr. Gellately has been celebrated as a grower of tomatoes, of which he has made a specialty, and his pack of this fruit brought a top price from Vancouver to the Northwest. The value of this crop is amazing and Mr. Gellately has made the crop yield him a return of $5,000 an acre.

But he is not content with what he has done. He sees vast possibilities ahead and is preparing for them. He is now opening about of him a vast and rapidly expanding market and the question arises, how is he going to meet it. He proposes to do it by adopting the most up to date methods of culture and by working over with glass three acres which will be planted with tomatoes and the area heated by hundreds of feet of steam piping, thus enabling him to get his fruit early on the market and in the best condition. A start will shortly be made on the great work. It is the surprise of such settlers as Mr. Gellately that is going to make this valley, and will help agriculture in far and mid as Canada's garden spot.

The Outcrop is on sale at A. R. Yates Drug Store, Wilmer.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie will conduct Presbyterian church services at Galena the fourth Sunday of each month, and every other Sunday in Windermere at 11 a.m., Atholmer 3 p.m. and Wilmer 7:30 p.m.

Will Assist K.C.R.

During the past week Kootenay Central Railway talk has been very much in evidence and all along the line a movement is being made by the people to assist the company all they can in assuring its early active construction and completion. It appears now to be the contention that the people along the line should do all they can to aid in the matter, as it is to their own and the country's best interests so to do. Just how to assist has proved quite a problem as the company has not come forward with any proposition nor has it even intimated what it wants or even what it expects. Yet from the way things have been shaping the past few months it has become evident even to the most casual observer that the company is for the present only complying with the legal provisions that enables it to hold its charter and Dominion subsidy, and that, therefore, it is the intention to make another effort to obtain some assistance from the Provincial Government.

It is argued, and rightly so, that the Legislature can not give away any more land and that it has no money to offer the company, and it follows that all that can be expected of the Legislature is a guarantee of interest on bonds that may be issued by the company or some other similar arrangement that will aid the company in raising the necessary capital for construction purposes only, as it is known the C. P. R. is quite prepared to operate the road once it is built and it is the only company that can do it to the best advantage.

All of these things and many other points having been fully considered it is proposed to call meetings at all the points along the route to thoroughly discuss the subject and with the view to drawing up petitions asking the Provincial Government to assist the road in whatever manner it may deem best for the interests of this district in particular and the province in general, and to make the immediate construction and completion of the road one of the chief provisions that the assistance is granted on.

The wisdom of such a petition is evident to everyone and it is safe to say such a petition will be readily, if not eagerly, signed by all who have any interest in the country, and, moreover, it is believed and asserted the Kootenay Central company is prepared to accept this condition if any reasonable assistance is granted.

For the reason that The Outcrop has steadily maintained and persistently argued that the C. P. R. Co. would build the Kootenay Central road for the purpose of using it as part of the main line in lieu of taking freight over the Big Hill and to land coal from the Crow quickly at the Coast, The Outcrop has been informed that Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C. P. R., specifically states this is not the case and further that unless the Legislature announces a definite railway policy the C. P. R. will not build another mile of railway in British Columbia. Just why the latter statement is made or what is meant by it The Outcrop does not know, but without reiterating the arguments previously advanced it may be well to accept these statements and proceed along the lines already indicated to insure the early building of the K. C. R., for if that is accomplished something tangible will be accomplished, whereas all the argument that can now be produced will accomplish little or nothing.

The necessity of the road is realised more and more as time glides by, for the many reasons advanced for its construction and the hopes that have been held out have done the country more harm than good. The whole country is practically at a standstill as a result and will remain so until the railway question is settled. All of the big mines that were operating have shut down and the managers declare it is for no other reason than that they can save money by waiting for the railway, and yet admit they would be working and shipping ore were it not for the promises held out for better transportation facilities.

DISTRICT CROPPINGS

And Other Items of Interest in a General Way

R. A. Kimpton spent last Saturday afternoon in Wilmer and in the course of a conversation said his big orchard at Windermere had done remarkably well for young trees the past season and that he was well pleased with the results as a whole. He said that after this year no fruit should be shipped into this valley from the outside as local orchardists will be able to supply the entire demand in future and that it would not be long until the supply would exceed the present local demand and a market sought on the prairie. Mr. Kimpton said he had himself sold between 40 and 50 boxes of apples this year, besides having plenty for his own use, and that by next year he expected to be able to sell a great deal more. Speaking of planting fruit trees Mr. Kimpton said that it was his experience—having planted over 16,000 trees—that it was very easy to make them grow provided they were properly planted, but that if trees were not properly planted it was just as easy to make a grand failure. He had learned many things by experience since he started in the business that are peculiar to this country and climate and he was still learning more, but there was one thing he was quite certain of and that was that there is no place where fruit trees will be grown earlier or better than right in this valley, with proper planting to start with. He said that next spring he intended to plant 250 more trees and after that he would buy no more trees as he would thereafter have plenty of his own to plant. Speaking of the loss of trees planted Mr. Kimpton said the per centage was very small indeed, and that in fact he did not know of any fruit country where the per centage of failures was so low. Mr. Kimpton is very anxious of the possibilities of this valley as a fruit country and as he has by far the largest amount of capital invested in the industry here there is no one who has a better right to express his views than he and it is good to know that he is so hopeful and well satisfied with his big undertaking.

Walter Mr. Kimpton all the success is possible with for himself and with the kindest feeling The Outcrop would have him in future known as the "Windermere Apple King".

A case which caused unusual interest came up before E. J. Scott, S.M., on Monday, in which Geo. Bart sued Capt. H. T. Munn, for a month's wages. Bart claimed the Captain had dismissed him and he was engaged under a year's contract at $250 to work on the ranch. The Captain contended he had not dismissed Bart but had given him a half hour to consider whether he would quit work at once or continue work with the understanding he could be dismissed on a month's notice, and that Bart had then decided to quit. As the Captain said Bart had been late in starting to work twice and one day did not do as much work as usual, yet he did not think that sufficient grounds to dismiss him, judgment was given in favor of Bart. The interest taken in the case was mainly on account of the libelously low wage paid in a country like this, but as the law has been appealed comment on it now would be out of place.

The dance to be given the Windermere Hall tomorrow evening promises to be well attended and a success is every way.

Don't overlook the dance tomorrow night at Windermere.

The latest reports quote silver at 63½, and lead in London at 215.

Never miss a chance to boost our industrial trio—mining, lumbering and agriculture.

Neil McCormick left for the south on the Cranbrook stage Tuesday. He may not return until spring.

On Tuesday 12 more men arrived at Atholmer and have gone to work in the Columbia River Lumber Company's camps on the west side of Windermere lake.

It is stated that Hardwick Grainger is improving his ranch at Thunder Hill and intends purchasing several hundred head of cattle and embarking on a large scale in this business.

W. Harrison was in town on Monday and stated he has a contract with the C. R. L. Co. to cut ties on his ranch west of Canterbury, which will keep him busy this winter. He has engaged four men and will start work at once.

Foreman F. C. Stockdale, who has been at the Plutonium mine since mid-summer, came down on Sunday and with F. L. Snook on Tuesday for Barton City, where it is stated he will take charge of Mr. H. E. Forster's mine near that town.

There has been the finest skating ever known on Wilmer lake the past week, and on Sunday afternoon nearly half the city folks were on skates—but, say, don't tell any one about the heathen, no deaths reported to date—and every other day large numbers enjoyed this healthful exercise.

Mr. R. L. T. Galbraith, Indian agent, spent several days in this vicinity during the week on official business. He was accompanied by Dr. Watt, of Fort Steele, who stated that he had made the trip only for the purpose of seeing the country and now regretted that he had not made his first trip years ago instead of at this late date so pleased was he with all that he had seen of the country.

Little "Billie" Ball met with a very painful accident on Saturday afternoon which might easily have proved fatal. While playing with some other children near the blacksmith shop he stooped over to watch Howard Altan strike a stick with an axe, when the axe glanced off and struck "Billie" on the head a little back and above the ear. The cut inflicted was about two inches long and bled the bone and from which he lost a bit of blood as a small artery had been severed. Dr. Elliott was hastily summoned and found it necessary to put in four stitches. "Billie" is now playing about as usual.

At the meeting of the Mountain Lumbermen's Association which was held in Nelson it was decided not to advance the price of lumber although it will be almost certainly advanced at the new year. There was a conference at the same time between F. W. Peters, C.P.R. western freight traffic manager and H. Macdonell, assistant freight agent, and the association at which certain points relative to sales to new territory in the Northwest was discussed at some length. There are 35 miles in the association, which has been recently reorganized, and every one of them was represented in person or by proxy. The agreement arrived at with the railway and the determination as to the advance in price of lumber may be said to be unanimous.

This incident, related by the Kansas City Star, has its moral. A man in South Haven, Kansas, had a grievance against an editor, and consulted a lawyer to find out the best way to "break up the paper." The lawyer told him the surest way would be to buy the paper and run it himself a few months.

BEAUTIFUL LAND OF NOD

Come, cradle your head on my shoulder, dear,

Your head like the golden-rod,
And we will go sailing away from here
To the beautiful Land of Nod.

Away from life's hurry, and flurry, and worry,

Away from earth's shadows and gloom,
To a world of fair weather we'll float all together

Where roses are always in bloom.

Just shut up your eyes, and fold your hands,
Your hands like the leaves of a rose,
And we will go sailing to those fair lands
That never an atlas shows.

On the North and the West they are bounded by rest,

On the South and the East, by dreams;
Tis the country ideal, where nothing is real,
But everything only seems.

Just drop down the curtains of your dear eyes,

Those eyes like a bright blue bell,
And we will sail out under starlit skies,
To the land where the fairies dwell.

Down the river of sleep, our barque shall sweep,
Till it reaches that mystical isle
Which no man hath seen, but where all have been,
And there we will pause awhile.

I will crown you a song as we float along,
To the shore that is blessed of God,
Then lo! for that fair land, we're off for that rare land,
The beautiful Land of Nod.

BACK FROM KLONDIKE

(Reprinted by request.)

If you're waking, call me early; call me early, mother dear,

For there are hundreds out of work, and jobs are scarce, I hear;

Tomorrow I must hustle round and try and get a bit.

Any old place will do mother, so I can capture it.

I don't want any snap, mother; no more; I seek;

From more I'll night I'll gladly toil for only ten a week.

I've had my dream of riches and I've seen it fade away.

Like the morning mist in summer-time before the bright sun's ray.

I thought to come home rich, mother; I thought I'd make a strike

When I left home a year ago and journeyed to Klondike;

In season I saw myself, mother, with bags and bags of gold—

Instead, I've got a hard luck tale—the hardest ever told.

My clothes are all worn out, mother; they're little else than rags,

From a sartorial point of view I would be classed with vag.

I need a hair cut and shampoo, I'm dying for a shave,

And, oh, to have a bath once more and have and have and have.

I'm glad to be back home, mother; I'm glad to be alive;

I wonder, now, as back I look, how ever I survived.

This digging gold is hales; I've had enough of it;

Any old job will do me now, so it's a steady "sit".

There is no happiness in having and getting, but only in giving; half the world is on the wing sent in pursuit of happiness—Henry Drummond

Different Now—Hundreds of years before the Christian era, when an Eastern poet wished to sum up his impressions of perfect womanhood he looked his ideal portrait with these words: "She queneth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

Woman overworked? Fudge! Think of the men!

Ah, but you know the old saying: "Woman's work is never done."

I know it, and that's the reason she oughtn't to complain. A man has to do his work or lose his job!

Suppose that's why men are always looking for a job?

We all have our trials. Yes, but one thing is lucky. What's that? That all our trials are not before a judge and jury.
